Sale of Food from Temporary and Mobile Food Premises

There are many registered food businesses, community groups and water carters that sell food to the public from temporary and mobile food premises within the City of Greater Shepparton.

Amendments to the Victorian Food Act 1984 were introduced to streamline the registration and food safety requirements for food businesses and community groups.

The changes to the Food Act require any person (food business or community group) selling food at an event or market, or a water carter, to register with or notify their local (principal) Council.

Once approved, the food business or community group can operate at an event or attend a market anywhere in Victoria, while the registration is current, by completing a Statement of Trade and submitting it to the Council in which you intend to operate in before the event.
